TOWN OF LAKESHORE
LEGISLATIVE & LEGAL SERVICES

TO: Dog Pound Committee Members

FROM: Brianna Coughlin, Manager of Legislative Services

DATE: January 17, 2020

SUBJECT: 2020 Dog Pound Budget

RECOMMENDATION:

It is recommended that the Dog Pound Committee:

Approve the 2020 Dog Pound Budget, including Option #____ as described in the report by the Manager of Legislative Services dated January 17, 2020.

BACKGROUND:

The 2020 budget for the Dog Pound is being presented to the Committee for review and approval. The draft budget recognizes the ongoing maintenance and operating costs, as well as a one-time transfer from the Capital Reserve that was pre-approved July 31, 2019 for the capital improvements undertaken at the facility this year.

COMMENTS:

Construction Costs

$45,800 was included in the 2019 Budget for construction costs for the Dog Pound. The following is an overview of the capital projects undertaken in 2019:

Capital Project	2019 Budget	2019 Actual
Accessible access/walkway	$30,000	$11,574.19 + $1,759.55 for fence
Fire and security alarm	$2,000	No capital cost, monthly fee only
Ventilation (work order)	$3,000	$1,897.82
New door with buzzer	$4,000	$3,284.81
Half wall for office area	$800	$423.75
Camera updates	$6,000	$7,131.75
Furnace Repair	-	$3,358.08
Total:	$45,800	$29,429.95

The capital project has come in approximately $20,000 under budget. However, part of those savings were used to replace the furnace in the kennel, which was at the end of its lifespan. This brought the total cost of capital expenditures to $29,429.95 (approximately $16,400 under budget).

In July 2019, the Dog Pound Committee pre-approved $20,000 to replenish the Capital Reserve in order to offset the construction costs. However, with the construction costs being lower than expected, only $3,600 will be needed.

In light of this, it is recommended that the Dog Pound Committee consider the following two options:

Option 1: maintain the $20,000 transfer to the Capital Reserve as approved in July 2019, in order to prepare for future capital costs.

Option 2: reduce the transfer to the Capital Reserve to $3,600 for 2020.

The proposed 2020 budget also includes $5,000 for capital expenditures in order to upgrade the computer, allowing for online dog tag applications and payments, as well as the installation of LED lighting to reduce utility costs in the future.

Operating Costs

The recommended budget for operating costs is based on historical costs for the operation of the Dog Pound, as well as anticipated increases. Notably, wages and benefits as well as grass cutting and snow plowing have increased slightly over 2019 rates.

The 2020 draft budget provides for $76,430 in operating expenses.

Revenue

In the past, the Dog Pound has received revenue from the Municipality of Chatham-Kent as part of the service agreement. This agreement ended March 31, 2019 and as such this revenue stream has not been included in the 2020 Budget.

As part of the 2019 Budget deliberations, the Dog Pound Committee approved a review of the dog redemption fees. It is Administration's intention to bring forward a report on the matter, with environmental scan of best practices, to the next Dog Pound Committee meeting. Until such time as the dog redemption fees are changed, the 2020 Budget is estimating income based on the 2019 rate.

FINANCIAL IMPACTS:

Should the Dog Pound Committee choose Option #1 for the 2020, which includes the $20,000 transfer to reserves as pre-approved in 2019, the total net budget presented is $119,830, representing a 2.4% increase from 2019.

If Option #2 is chosen, the transfer to reserves would decrease to $5,850 with an overall net budget of $103,430. This would represent an 11.6% decrease from 2019.

TOWN OF LAKESHORE
LEGISLATIVE & LEGAL SERVICES

TO: Dog Pound Committee Members

FROM: Brianna Coughlin, Manager of Legislative Services

DATE: January 17, 2020

SUBJECT: Provincial Animal Welfare Services Act, 2019

RECOMMENDATION:

It is recommended that the Dog Pound Committee:

Receive the report of the Manager of Legislative Services entitled “Provincial Animal Welfare Services Act, 2019”, presented at the January 22, 2020 Dog Pound Committee meeting.

BACKGROUND:

Animal cruelty and animal welfare concerns have traditionally been handled by the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (OSPCA), a private registered charity that has been enforcing animal cruelty and welfare laws on behalf of the Province of Ontario since 1919. The OSPCA was granted this authority by way of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act (the “Act”).

In January 2019, a Superior Court decision ruled that sections of the Act violated the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, as giving police powers to a private body without transparency and accountability is unconstitutional. The Province was given one year to make changes to the Act to ensure more transparency and accountability in animal welfare enforcement in Ontario.

In March 2019, the OSPCA announced that they will end their work in investigating and enforcing animal cruelty laws in Ontario, and is “moving forward with plans to provide animal-related services as support to law enforcement.”ⁱ

On April 1st, the Province announced a transitional period whereby the OSPCA would continue to provide animal welfare enforcement services until June 28, 2019, with the exception of complaints relating to livestock and horses.

Bill 117, an Act to amend the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act (the “Interim Act”), was given royal assent June 6, 2019. The Interim Act allowed the Solicitor General to appoint a Chief Inspector, who may then appoint any person as an inspector for the interim period (until January 1, 2020). The Windsor/Essex County

Humane Society (WECHS) was appointed by the Chief Inspector as an inspector for the area until January 1, 2020.

At the time the Interim Act was introduced, the Province was in the process of developing a new structure for animal welfare investigations. There was concern that the Province could download the responsibilities to municipalities or the police, which could have a large impact on staff and budgets.

COMMENTS:

On October 29, 2019, the Province enacted the Provincial Animal Welfare Services Act, 2019 (the “PAWS Act”). This Act creates an animal welfare program enforced by provincial inspectors. The Province has confirmed that all enforcement mechanisms will be performed by them.

The following is a broad overview of provisions found in the PAWS Act that came into force January 1, 2020:

- Every person who owns or has custody of an animal is required to comply with standards of care and administrative requirements outlined in the PAWS Act, with specific exceptions for certain agricultural and veterinary activities;
- Veterinarians have a duty to report abuse, undue physical or psychological hardship, privation or neglect;
- Harming or attempting to cause harm to law enforcement or service animals is prohibited;
- There are several prohibitions relating to animal fights, including the prohibition to possess equipment or structures used in animal fights;
- Animal welfare inspectors may enter and inspect places to determine compliance with the PAWS Act. A warrant is required to enter a dwelling unless the occupant consents to the entry, however the inspector may enter without a warrant if the time required to obtain a warrant may result in serious injury or death to the animal;
- Animal welfare inspectors may apply for warrants to investigate potential offences. Warrantless searches may be authorized if the inspector has reasonable grounds to believe that the time required to obtain the warrant would result in the loss, removal or destruction of evidence;
- Animal welfare inspectors may take possession of animals in distress if orders to comply with the PAWS Act are not complied with, if the owners or custodian cannot be found quickly or on the advice of a veterinarian. The Chief Animal Welfare Inspector may keep an animal if there are concerns about returning the animal to the owner or custodian;

- Animals seized as a result of animal fighting are automatically forfeited to the Province.
- Animal welfare inspectors are subject to a code of conduct.

Animal welfare concerns may be reported 24 hours/day by calling 1-833-9ANIMAL (1-833-926-4625).

It is important to note that, should there be a conflict between a municipal by-law and the PAWS Act, the provision that affords the greater protection to animals will prevail. For example, when the Town of Lakeshore enacts the 4-hour tethering limit under the new animal control by-law, complaints will be directed to the Windsor/Essex County Humane Society.

FINANCIAL IMPACTS:

There are no financial impacts as a result of receiving this report. However, it is acknowledged that the provincial animal welfare system is still being implemented and that the Province has indicated that only 100 inspectors are to be appointed throughout Ontario. Should an urgent animal cruelty matter be identified, it is likely that local police will be requested to investigate and intervene, which may result in additional call-for-service costs for local municipalities, as well as requests to hold animals at local dog pound or veterinary facilities.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Bill enacts the Provincial Animal Welfare Services Act, 2019, repeals the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act and makes consequential amendments to other Acts. The major elements of the Bill are described below.

Part I (Interpretation)

This Part defines terms that are used throughout the Act.

Part II (Chief Animal Welfare Inspector)

This Part establishes a Chief Animal Welfare Inspector.

The Minister appoints the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector and may appoint deputy Chief Animal Welfare Inspectors. The Minister has duties to monitor the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector and handle complaints about him or her. In addition, the Minister may establish policies and give directions to the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector.

The Chief Animal Welfare Inspector has several duties related to the appointment and oversight of animal welfare inspectors as well as the provision of necessities for animals in the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector's care. He or she is an animal welfare inspector by virtue of being the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector.

The Chief Animal Welfare Inspector appoints animal welfare inspectors. These appointments may be subject to conditions or limitations and may be amended, suspended or revoked by the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector. The animal welfare inspectors, including the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector, are subject to a code of conduct.

Part III (Complaints)

This Part governs complaints about the conduct of animal welfare inspectors, including the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector. The Minister handles complaints about the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector, and the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector handles all other complaints.

The Chief Animal Welfare Inspector and the Minister shall investigate complaints if they believe the matter complained of warrants investigation. If they discover that the animal welfare inspector who is the subject of the complaint has failed to comply with the code of conduct, they can take several actions against them, up to and including revoking their appointment.

Part IV (Duties and Prohibitions)

This Part sets out several duties and prohibitions in respect of animals.

Every person who owns or has custody or care of an animal must comply with the standards of care and administrative requirements with respect to the animals. These standards and requirements are established by regulation. There are exceptions for certain agricultural and veterinary activities. Veterinarians have a duty to report abuse, undue physical or psychological hardship, privation or neglect.

No person shall cause an animal to be in distress, permit an animal to be in distress or knowingly or recklessly cause an animal to be exposed to an undue risk of distress, subject to certain exceptions.

There are several prohibitions relating to animal fights, including prohibitions on the possession of equipment or structures used in animal fights. There is a separate prohibition for causing harm or attempting to cause harm to law enforcement or service animals.

No person shall possess or breed an animal that has been prescribed by the regulations as a prohibited animal. Orca possession and breeding continues to be prohibited. In addition, the possession or breeding of animals that are prescribed by the regulations as a restricted animal requires authorization by the regulations.

Engaging in prescribed activities without an authorization and causing animals to undergo prescribed procedures are also prohibited.

Part V (Protection of Animals)

This Part sets out some of the powers animal welfare inspectors have to determine compliance with the Act and protect animals.

Animal welfare inspectors may enter and inspect places to determine compliance with certain requirements in the Act. They may apply for warrants to enter certain places, and require a warrant to enter a dwelling unless the occupier of the dwelling consents to the entry. They may ask for police assistance and may use reasonable force to execute a warrant.

Their inspection powers include the powers to inspect certain animals or things, to require the production of any animal or thing that is relevant to the inspection, to ask questions relevant to the inspection and to make reasonable inquiries.

Animal welfare inspectors may also enter and search a place with the consent of the occupier if they believe on reasonable grounds that there is an animal in distress to be found there. They may also apply for a warrant to search the place.

Inspectors may enter any place, other than a dwelling, without a warrant if they have reasonable grounds to believe that an animal is in critical distress and may enter a dwelling if the time required to obtain a warrant may result in serious injury or death to the animal.

An animal welfare inspector who has reasonable grounds to believe that an animal is in distress may order the owner or custodian to take certain actions to relieve its distress or have the animal examined and treated by a veterinarian at the expense of the owner or custodian.

Animal welfare inspectors may take possession of animals in distress if these orders aren't complied with. They may also take possession on the advice of a veterinarian or in cases where the owner or custodian cannot be found promptly, or in cases where the animal is being trained to, or participating in, an animal fight. The police may be called to assist and reasonable force may be used to take possession of the animal. The Chief Animal Welfare Inspector may then decide to keep an animal in the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector's care if certain concerns about returning the animal apply. Animal welfare inspectors may also cause an animal to be euthanized with the consent of the owner or custodian or in accordance with a veterinarian's opinion.

Persons to be prescribed in regulation are authorized to enter motor vehicles to relieve animals in critical distress. They may cause reasonable damage in entering the vehicle. They must promptly notify an animal welfare inspector and must allow the inspector to inspect the animal and determine whether to take possession of it.

Owners or custodians are liable for the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector's expenses in providing necessities to animals in the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector's care.

Part VI (Animal Care Review Board)

The Animal Care Review Board is continued. Owners or custodians of animals may appeal certain orders and decisions of the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector and other animal welfare inspectors to the Board. The Board has the power to confirm, revoke or modify these orders and decisions and to order that animals be returned to their owner or custodian.

Part VII (Enforcement)

This Part sets out the powers of animal welfare inspectors to investigate offences under the Act. The inspectors may apply for warrants to investigate potential offences. A warrantless search may be authorized if the inspector has reasonable grounds to believe that the time required to obtain a warrant would lead to the loss, removal or destruction of evidence.

Inspectors may ask the court to issue production orders to a person, other than a person under investigation for an offence, and may seize certain animals or things related to the commission of an offence under the Act. Animals seized as a result of a contravention of the prohibitions against animal fighting are automatically forfeited to the Crown in right of Ontario. Similarly, animals or things whose possession is prohibited are also forfeited to the Crown.

Animal welfare inspectors who have reasonable grounds to believe a person is contravening, has contravened or is about to contravene certain provisions of this Act may require the person to give his or her name and address. The inspectors may call upon police to assist the inspector and may use whatever force is reasonably necessary to exercise their powers under this Part.

Part VIII (Offences and Penalties)

This Part sets out both minor and major offences under the Act, which are subject to different penalties.

It also provides for administrative penalties for contraventions of conditions of authorizations issued under section 20 (Restricted animal possession or breeding) or 21 (Prescribed activities) or for other prescribed provisions. It allows the Chief Animal Welfare Inspector to issue notices of contravention in respect of these contraventions and sets out a scheme for enforcing and collecting on these penalties.

A separate section provides for orders to remove orcas that are possessed in Ontario in contravention of section 19.

Part IX (General)

This Part sets out some of the powers of police officers and First Nations Constables in respect of animals. It also sets out the ability of veterinarians to euthanize animals.

General rules for forfeitures under the Act are set out. An immunity provision provides for protection from personal liability for a number of different persons.

Part X (Regulations)

This Part sets out the regulation-making powers of the Lieutenant Governor in Council and the Minister.

Part XI (Transition)

This Part sets out transitional rules in respect of the repealed Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act.

Part XII (Self-Amendments, Consequential Amendments and Repeal)

This Part repeals the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act.

Consequential amendments are also made to several other Acts.

Part XIII (Commencement and Short Title)

This Part sets out the commencement and short title of the Act. Most of the Act comes into force on a day to be named by proclamation of the Lieutenant Governor.

Update regarding Bill 117

June 06, 2019

FAQ:

What will the Ontario SPCA do now?

The law enforcement services provided by the Ontario SPCA made up only about 20% of the Ontario SPCA everyday operations and life-saving work.

The transition from law enforcement has allowed us to expand our efforts in animal rescue, animal transfer and community-based mobile services. Recently, we cut the ribbon on a new mobile companion animal hospital, allowing us to create access to spay/neuter services across the province. In addition, we've added to our fleet of trucks and trailers to increase the number of animal transfers over the summer months. We welcome our partner Affiliates to join us in these life-saving programs.

Does the Ontario SPCA and Humane Society object to Affiliates enforcing legislation?

The Ontario SPCA and Humane Society recognizes that it is the option of each autonomous charity to decide whether to enter into an agreement with the Government of Ontario to enforce provincial animal welfare legislation. The decision to continue is not without risk and we have recommended that these Affiliates take steps to protect their charities, members and donors. We will continue to support our Affiliate Societies, where we are able, and we have welcomed our Affiliate Societies to join the life-saving programs the Ontario SPCA is offering across the province.

The Ontario SPCA has pointed out that there are still concerns left unaddressed in the Bill. To name a few:

- ☐ Officer safety and Officer workloads have been a key concern for the Ontario SPCA and were among the leading factors in making our decision to return legislation enforcement to the government. A smaller number of service providers and Officers will only exacerbate these problems.
- ☐ There may be even more confusion among the public if some Affiliates are continuing to enforce legislation, while the majority of the province will not be covered by Affiliates;

- The risks associated with this work have been outlined in a report released by Dr. Kendra Coulter, Brock University. These risks were also identified in a survey conducted by independent researchers on behalf of the Ontario SPCA and Humane Society. As employers, we have been publicly cautioned regarding concerns for Officer safety and can be held responsible for the safety of our employees.

What will happen to the 310-SPCA call centre and where does one report cruelty?

The Ontario SPCA and Humane Society will continue to operate the 310-SPCA (7722) call centre as a service for the public to report cruelty. Our trained dispatchers will field the calls and direct the caller to the appropriate government agency to respond to their cruelty complaint. In the cases where law enforcement is not required, the Ontario SPCA will continue to respond directly. 310-SPCA is also a direct line for law enforcement agencies requiring support.

Does the Ontario SPCA agree with the changes Bill 117 is implementing to the Act?

The Ontario SPCA and Humane Society is pleased to see that the Ontario Government is actively taking responsibility for its provincial legislation. Law enforcement is a responsibility of government.

We were not consulted regarding these changes and believe that the current legislation needs to be rewritten to better protect animals.

The Ontario SPCA seeks and supports the service delivery model that provides maximum protection of animals. Having been a charity since 1873, the Ontario SPCA understands first hand how no one organization can do this work alone. As a result, we are moving forward with a model of animal protection where we provide animal-related expertise to the province and its enforcement agencies.

The Ontario SPCA is moving forward with our plans to provide animal-related services as support to law enforcement. An overview of Ontario SPCA Enforcement Support Services is attached. We have had over 40 meetings to date with law enforcement agencies and municipalities regarding these services. We will continue to provide direct response to communities and law enforcement through 310-SPCA. This service will ease the transition to the new enforcement model, allow the public to report animal concerns unrelated to law enforcement and provide direct access to support for police and municipalities.

More about this new model:

What we are offering the Ontario Government is a new operational model where the Ontario SPCA supplies expertise in animal-related services as a support service to enforcement agencies. It's similar to the ASPCA model in the United States, which has been in place for five years and is quite successful. Through the expertise of all agencies involved, this model will maximize resources for the best possible protection of animals. Government agencies should be utilized for their expertise in law enforcement. Other animal welfare agencies should be used for their expertise in livestock and wildlife care. We could be utilized through Ontario SPCA Enforcement Support Services for our expertise in animal care, veterinary medicine, animal transportation and understanding of the collection and processing of forensic evidence to help build cases against animal abusers.

As provincial animal welfare legislation is owned by the government, it is only fitting that the cases be led by a government agency and supported by other parties, like Ontario SPCA Enforcement Support Services.

Why are you giving up investigations?

In January, a Superior Court judge ruled that it was unconstitutional for the Government of Ontario to permit a charity to provide law enforcement services. They did not find fault with the Ontario SPCA, but rather that a charity had been tasked with enforcing legislation owned by the government.

Prior to this Superior Court ruling, a researcher with Brock University, Dr. Kendra Coulter, conducted an independent study assessing the enforcement work of the Ontario SPCA. She found Officer safety was the number one issue. The funding we were being provided through our contract with the government to enforce its laws was woefully inadequate to keep our Officers safe. To put this risk in perspective, in 2012 a retired RCMP Officer, who worked as a Peace Officer in municipal animal services south of Calgary, was murdered during an animal investigation.

As a result of these factors, the Ontario SPCA made the decision not to renew its contract with the Government of Ontario, which expired on March 31, 2019. To help ensure a smooth transition period, the Ontario SPCA offered a three-month transition phase of the current working arrangement, which will see the Ontario SPCA continue to enforce the legislation until June 28, 2019. After that date, enforcement services will transition back to the government.

The Ontario SPCA has recommended a new service model that will provide maximum protection for the animals. Ontario SPCA Enforcement Support Services provides animal-related expertise to municipal, provincial and federal law enforcement agencies. These services include collecting and processing forensic evidence to help build cases against animal abusers, on-site support providing animal care, including veterinary medicine, animal transportation, animal sheltering and the placement of rescued animals in homes or other suitable environments.

Why doesn't the Ontario SPCA and Humane Society want to enforce cruelty anymore?

In 2016, we conducted a survey of all Peace Officers across Ontario to assess the current environment under which they were operating. The results were overwhelmingly consistent. Officer safety was the number one issue, with fatigue and burnout also reported. The Ontario SPCA began to address this by right-sizing the enforcement work.

Shortly after this survey was completed, a study was undertaken by Dr. Kendra Coulter of Brock University, assessing the enforcement work of the Ontario SPCA. Professor Coulter came to the same conclusions regarding Officer safety. In 2012, south of Calgary, a retired RCMP Officer who worked as a Peace Officer in municipal animal services was murdered during an animal investigation.

Furthermore, over the past number of years, there have been many instances of other government ministries not assisting in making animal cruelty investigations a priority – for example, the Attorney General's office refusal to take Marineland to court, even after they had been charged with cruelty by the Ontario SPCA and the charges being dismissed against Dr. Rekhi, a veterinarian in St. Catharines, investigated and charged for animal abuse.

All of these factors have led the Ontario SPCA to undertake a review of the viability of our charity continuing to enforce the government's law and brought about the understanding that it is time for change. Animals deserve respect, protection and justice.
